ARMENIAN TERRORISM

Armenian terrorism, in the absence of sufficient political and military strength, has been used from its early inception as an effective tool for acquiring resources and territory to create a sole living space for Armenians scattered across the world. The early Armenian political institutions of Armenikan (1885), Hunchak (1887) and the Armenian Revolutionary Federation Dashnaktsutyun/ARFD (1890) recognized and utilized terror as a necessary means of struggle against perceived enemies and a way to consolidate the Armenian ethnicity in its transformation from an ethno-religious sect of the Armenian Gregorian Church into a mono-ethnic nation with statehood.

The first manifestation of Armenian terrorism occurred on 26 August 1896 when 28 armed members of the ARFD, commanded by its leading member Karekin Pastermadjian, seized the Ottoman Central Bank in Istanbul, taking 156 civilians - mainly European nationals - hostages. The 14-hour armed takeover incited the involvement of European embassies and yielded positive political results for the ARFD: Pastermadjian gained a seat at the Ottoman Parliament as a representative of the Armenian community and was later appointed as Armenian Ambassador to the United States, thus testifying to the effectiveness of using terror to advance Armenian nationalistic interests.

This initial success of Armenian terrorism inspired a series of assassinations of high level officials at the end of XIX and the beginning of XX centuries by members and supporters of the Hunchak and ARFD (A non-exhaustive chronology of Armenian terrorism is provided in the Annex).

Generating wide support within the larger Armenian community, Armenian terrorism became remarkable in its severe hatred against anyone who stood on its way, including members of its own and other ethnicities.

A grim example of this was the brutal massacre against Azerbaijanis in March 1918. While Azerbaijanis were celebrating their most cherished national holiday - Novruz, armed terrorists of the ARFD began raiding cities and villages all over Azerbaijan and slaughtering Azerbaijanis with unprecedented cruelty. As a result, more than 50,000 Azerbaijanis perished in those days.

A year later, ARFD initiated the secret operation "Nemesis" seeking "to take revenge" for the events of 1915 in Ottoman Turkey. In the 1920s under the "Nemesis" operation a number of terror acts and assassinations were committed against Turkish officials in several foreign countries, expanding the scope and geography of Armenian terrorism across the world.

In this period, terror acts were also committed against founders and officials of the Azerbaijan Democratic Republic. In 1920, the Armenian terrorists assassinated Fatali Khan Khoyski and Hasan bey Aghayev.

In the middle of XX century Armenian terrorism laid dormant, being institutionalized within Armenian terrorist organizations secretly operating in Armenian-populated regions of the Middle East and Europe. Terrorists from the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia - ASALA (1975), the Justice Commandos of the Armenian Genocide – JCAG (1975), New Armenian Resistance – NAR (1977) and other extremist groups attacked Turkish officials in France, Switzerland, Italy, US, Lebanon, Turkey, Iran, and the UK, thus killing more than 30 Turkish diplomats, including ambassadors. Between the 1970s and 1990s Armenian terror organizations committed hundreds of terror acts in various countries, killing over 70 people, prompting the adoption of several international legal acts to suppress terrorism, including the Protocol on the Suppression of Unlawful Acts of Violence in Airports Servicing Civil Aviation by the United Nations in February 1988.

With occurrence of Armenia's unlawful and groundless territorial claims towards Karabakh region of Azerbaijan in 1980s, the activities of Armenian terror organizations were diverted to Azerbaijan. The second half of 1980s was marked by terror acts by Armenian terrorists, mainly involving bombings of public buses and metro trains in the territory of Azerbaijan. These terror acts committed at the end of 1980s – beginning of 1990s resulted in death of over 2000 people.

Since gaining its independence in 1991, the Republic of Armenia has resorted to terror to advance its territorial claims against Azerbaijan, culminating in the occupation of the territories of the Republic of Azerbaijan. Funded and staffed by the Armenian diaspora and the special security services of Armenia over 6000 Armenians living in Lebanon, Syria, Iran, Russia, Ukraine, Greece, Bulgaria, France and the US took an active part in military occupation of internationally recognized territories of the Azerbaijan Republic, forcing over one million Azerbaijanis out of their homes. Among them were such notorious terrorists like Monte Melkonian, Vazgen Sislyan and Grant Markaryan.

The terror tactics was also widely used during the occupation of the territories of Azerbaijan to terrorize the population at large. The fate of Khojaly town is one among many, where 613 Azerbaijanis, including 106 women and 63 children were brutally murdered on the night of 25-26 February, 1992.

Notably, two of Armenia's previous presidents, Serzh Sargysan and Robert Kocharian, were warlords of the illegal regime created by Armenia in the occupied territories of Azerbaijan who led massacres of the civilian population. The following words by S.Sargsyan in his interview to British journalist Thomas de Waal leave no doubt about Armenia's planned and systemic violence against civilians: "Before Khojaly, Azerbaijanis thought that Armenians were people who could not raise their hand against the civilian population. We needed to put a stop to all that. We were able to break that [stereotype]."

After 1994, terror acts against civilians continued in the form of sniper attacks or explosive toys dropped in nearby rivers and its main victims were women, children and the elderly. For instance, Fariz Badalov (born in 2003) killed by a sniper shot in the Aghdam district in 2011, Aygun Shahmaliyeva (1998) killed as a result of the blast of an explosive device built in a toy found by her in the Tovuz River in 2011 and Zahra Guliyeva (2015) killed in the Fizuli district as a result of shelling in 2017 are among the children who became the victims of the Armenian terrorism.

Born out of extreme nationalist sentiments envisioning creation of a mythical "Greater Armenia" Armenian terrorism has continuously adapted to meet the changing objectives of the Armenian cause. Emerged at the end of XIX century and growing rapidly in mid-XX century, Armenian terrorism became a major threat to countries in the region and beyond, with more than 200 terrorist attacks committed on four different continents, including Europe, Asia, America, and even Australia. Given that every wave of heightened Armenian nationalism has been accompanied by terror and violence, proper and timely measures must be taken to eradicate this phenomenon for the purpose of ensuring peace, security and stability both at the regional and international levels.
